"WHERE CHILDREN ARE IMPORTANT"

PAINTING: RUTVI MORE (1A)

FROM THE PRINCIPAL'S DESK

Dear Students and Parents,

As the year draws to a close soon and we are now in the last month of 2024, it's time to reflect on our journey so far.

I'm thrilled to see many of our students coming forward this year and giving their best and participating in various inter school and intra school competitions. Many of our students have made us proud by achieving laurels in debates, declamations, sports and other activities even at the district, state and national levels. We are proud of their achievements. However, I also want to emphasize that even if you didn't win, we are equally proud that you came forward and took that first step in participation.

At AMPS, we believe that participation is a learning process. It's about understanding what's expected of you and striving to improve. You may not always be at par with the winners, but that doesn't make you a loser. You've gained valuable experience and lessons that will help you excel in the future.

So, I urge you all to compete with yourself and then to push your boundaries and to strive for excellence. That's when true winning happens.

Let's continue to work together to make our school community proud.

STUDENT'S CORNER

REFLECTION

*I lingered around the place, two souls where met,
Now they walk past, glancing at each other's silhouette.*

*The forgotten amusement park once alive with cheer,
Faded away with the memory of echoes here.*

*The eyes that sparkled, with the love they adorned
Now they shed tears, from the memories they mourned.*

*The source of darkness is finally gone;
as light falls, I shall bid my farewell now and welcome the dawn.*

WISE UNITY

Once upon a time, in a lush forest, there stood an ancient tree known as the Wise Tree. Loved by all, it provided shelter and wisdom to the forest creatures. One day, a severe drought hit the forest. Streams dried up and the forest began to wither. The animals struggled to find water and the Wise Tree felt their pain.

Seeing their plight, the Wise Tree called a meeting. "Friends," it said, "I can share some water from my roots, but I need your help to stay cool and shaded." The animals agreed to work together.

Birds flew to gather large leaves, which the squirrels and monkeys placed around the tree's base for shade. Deer and rabbits dug channels to collect dew. Their collective effort kept the Wise Tree healthy, and it shared its water with the thirsty animals.

Days passed, and the animals' teamwork bore fruit. The Wise Tree remained strong and one morning, gentle rain began to fall, ending the drought. The forest rejoiced.

The Wise Tree said, "We survived because we worked together. Unity and cooperation can overcome any challenge." The animals never forgot this lesson and continued to live in harmony, always ready to help one another.

Moral of the Story:

Unity and cooperation can help overcome even the toughest challenges. By working together and supporting one another, we can achieve great things.

THE CLEVER ADVISOR

Once upon a time in the town of Wellingborough, England, lived a powerful and wealthy king named Samuel. Samuel owned a very big kingdom which included countries like Spain, United Kingdom, France, Portugal and more than half of Russia. He had twelve advisors, one of whom was Elmer. Elmer was the closest friend of Samuel and was the cleverest of them all. He gave the king suggestions. Rest of the advisors did not like his bonding with Samuel and were jealous. They tried numerous attempts to separate them but did not succeed. This was because Elmer would find out about the plan every time and would reverse its result.

Many days passed and the advisors' plans continued to backfire. One day, they came to a conclusion. Their plans never succeeded because they were not intense enough. So they devised a plan to kill the King himself and make one of them the King and punish Elmer. "We will have a party tonight. We will then add sleeping pills in the King's drink to make him feel dizzy and he will soon become unconscious. Then we will take him to a remote place and kill him," said one of the advisors. But, unfortunately for them, Elmer was standing just behind them in a hiding spot. He overheard the plan and tried to come up with a plan to save the King. He thought and thought till he finally came up with a plan.

The day for the party arrived. The party was lavish and had many guests. Soon, the advisors arrived with a drink in their hands. They gave the drink to the King and walked away to watch from a corner. Suddenly when the King was about to have a sip, Elmer approached the King. He involved the King in small talk and the King had to put the drink down on the table. Secretly, Elmer took the tainted drink and replaced it with another drink. Then Elmer walked away, happiness painted on his face. The advisors looked on in anger. But little did they know that two soldiers were standing behind them and they quickly handcuffed them. The advisors shouted to be let free. The King spotted the area of commotion and walked towards them with Elmer close by his side. Then when he asked the soldiers why they had handcuffed his advisors, Elmer told him about the advisors' plan to kill him. The king, in anger, ordered the soldiers to throw away the advisors in jail for a life's worth of imprisonment. The King then turned to Elmer. "Thanks for saving my life, Elmer. You really are the cleverest person and a very good friend."

Since he did not have a queen and ruled alone, he appointed Elmer as the new heir to the throne. He also appointed some of his close friends as his advisors. The king ruled for twenty more years before he gave up the throne to Elmer. Elmer became a very good ruler and lived happily.
